

Drops of words

Clean crisp air tugging teasingly through my hair

Droplets of spring sunlight surging through my body

My words flew up in a birdsong, fluttered, scattered and walked the sky

They wore the scent of lilac trees and smell of new burgeoning growing things.